(Continued from Page One.) Bishop Staley was appointed a membere of the Board of Education of the Kingdom, and in 1865 rules were adopted by the Board, which rules had been drawn up by the Bishop. The Hawaiian government had carefully considered the value of boarding schools for girls and a system of capitation grants was devised, the intention being to encourage the formation of schools for girls and to aid in their maintenance. One of the rules mentioned above read as follows: "Convinced that religion is the basis of all sound moral training, the Board expects that such schools shall be conducted on Christian principles, but it leaves to their directors full discretion as to the form of Christianity they may feel it right to inculcate." The result of this action of the Board led to the multiplication of girls schools on the Islands, so that in three years boarding schools as there had been before. It may be mentioned that the Priory never received any capitation
